On this Sunday we are celebrating AnchoredScraps.com 900th Daily Blog Post Today! Thank you for continuing to be on this daily blog post journey with me encouraging letter writing staying connected with old-style correspondence.

Looking Ahead Total Eclipse, WordCamp Wilmington 2017, & 1000th daily blog post stamp!

- In eight days the Total Solar Eclipse will occur on that Monday, August 21, 2017. There is an article over at The Washington Post from July: “Here’s every total solar eclipse happening in your lifetime. Is this year your best chance?”. “This is a rare event; it’s the first time the path of totality will eclipse only over the contiguous United States.”

Today over at Instructables it has step-by-step instructions for making your own Simple, Affordable, High Quality Solar Eclipse Viewer From a Cereal Box.

- Six weeks from today, on September 24th, I'll be presenting at WordCamp Wilmington 2017 on “Top 9 Lessons From Daily Blogging for Over 900 Days & Still Counting”. It is the Second Annual Wilmington WordCamp Event. I'm delighted to have been invited back to present again this year.
- This past week thanks to stamp club buddies Jimmy, and Bruce, the idea of what exactly to have to commemorate my upcoming 1000th blog post in November is taking shape. My sincere thanks to them!

From June 20, 2017 AnchoredScraps.com post: Total Eclipse of the Sun Forever Stamp & Postmark

This continues to be my favorite quote of mine that I repeat at each 100th blog post, originating with “ Celebrating blog post 200!”

“Any tendency for procrastination must be contained to within the 24 hours each day because the time stamp is going to occur regardless. ... What we do during each 24 hour period does make a difference in reaching our goals – and it is important to not just think about it but to actually take action.”
