In my email today from Leafcutter Designs their Special Delivery email was announcing their World's Smallest Post Service Kit Kickstarter campaign! It was a lot of fun to receive their Special Delivery email.

If it sounds familiar, back on May 22, 2016, my blog post was on the Worlds Smallest Postal Service created by Lea Redmond. There have been a few other blog posts on Leaf Cutter Designs here including their Letters To My book series, which I've given as gifts to friends and are well received.

“Make special mini missives for friends and family. Surprise and delight them all year long with our new themed sets! And rubber stamps!”

By clicking on the image it takes you to the video explaining the World's Smallest Post Service Kit Kickstarter campaign.

It is an All or nothing campaign, meaning what you pledge is only paid if it reaches its goal by Tuesday, October 3, 2017. As of writing today's post there are 20 days remaining. I've already signed up and made a small pledge. From what I'm seeing it is going to quickly meet their $5,000 goal. In my opinion, this means if you are wanting to participate I would check them out sooner than later. Have fun exploring them!

I'm including in the footer of today's post links to previous letter writing themed Kickstarter campaigns covered here at AnchoredScraps.

In conclusion, I'm going to have to ask my stamp club buddy Jimmy about adding a category for the World's Smallest Post Service Kit. This is for our ongoing discussion of the Smallest Post Offices in the U.S. I'm looking forward to having that as a future follow-up blog post!

Anchors Aweigh,

Helen
